

Max Flatow has helped shape the architectural design environment of our city through his designs of the Civic Plaza, the original Convention Center, the Simms Building, the Marriott Hotel, the education complex, the bell/tower and fountain, the School of Nursing and the Humanities Building on the University of New Mexico campus.

He continues his efforts to improve the quality of life in Albuquerque by recently working closely with Senator Pete Domenici to remove unsightly jetty jacks from the bosque.

Mr. Flatow records nature through his watercolors and teaches watercolor techniques to other seniors, as well as participating in other volunteer projects through the Jewish community.
